EIGHT BALLOON ENTRANTS STILL REMAIN ALOFT

Doubt Gordon Bennett Trophy Race Will Exceed Record

SEVERAL HAVE FALLEN

Swiss Entry Exhausts Gas Supply Near Fairmont, West Virginia

DETROIT, July 2.—(INS)—Eight of the twelve balloons that sailed away in the Gordon Bennett trophy race Saturday afternoon are still in the air, according to reports to officials here in charge of the race.

Because of sluggish winds and low pressure area officials expressed doubt that last year's record of 800 miles made by E. J. Hill and Albert Schlosser, of Detroit, would be exceeded.

The Swiss entry "Helvetia" piloted by E. S. Magg landed near Fairmont, W. Va., at noon yesterday, after exhausting its gas supply.

The American Business Club bag, of Akron, piloted by A. C. Palmer, came down near Roanoke, Va., at 4.05 p. m., Sunday on account of faulty instruments.

The Argentine entry manned by Don Eduardo Brady, pilot, and Huberto Eluff, landed near Millboro, Va., at 10 p. m. Sunday.

The pathfinder not competing in the race landed north of Durbine, Va.

William G. Naylor, of Detroit, piloting a United States, entry had landed safely according to a message received by his wife, Mrs. Naylor refused to state where the wire was from.

Croydon

Mr. and Mrs. John Weidman, of State Road, entertained on Wednesday of last week: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Senglaub, Mrs. Bessie Hamilton and Miss Alma Vandegrift, of Philadelphia. Miss Frances Wilkins, of Andalusia, was also a guest at the Weidman home several days during the week, returning to Andalusia on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gross, formerly of Bristol, have moved into their new home on Walnut avenue. During the erection of their new quarters Mr. and Mrs. Gross and family lived in a small cottage on the grounds.

Mrs. S. Schweitzer, of Belmont avenue and Neshaminy Road, is having a fresh coat of paint applied to her house.

A new bungalow is being erected on Neshaminy road by John Lawler, of Newportville Road.

Mrs. Annie Bangs, of Philadelphia, visited Mrs. Martin, of "The Martins," along the Neshaminy a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Cedar have moved from the Warner Cottage on Newportville Road to a house on Newport Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Leuschel and Mr. and Mrs. J. Seader, of Newportville Road, left on Saturday morning for Niagara Falls, N. Y., where they will spend several days. The quartette is making the trip in Mr. Seader's machine.

Rev. Paynter Resigns As Rector of St. James' Church

The resignation of the Rev. Henry Stuart Paynter as rector of St. James' P. E. Church, has been tendered to the Vestry of that edifice.

The Rev. Paynter has accepted a call to the Church of St. Barnabas, 64th and Haverford avenue, Philadelphia.

Rev. Paynter has been in Bristol for the past eight years as rector of St. James' and has a host of friends here who will regret his leaving.

In accepting the rectorship of St. Barnabas, Rev. Paynter assumes the charge of a large parish, well equipped. It is well located, and was built as a memorial to the late Bishop Whitaker.

BARN SET AFIRE

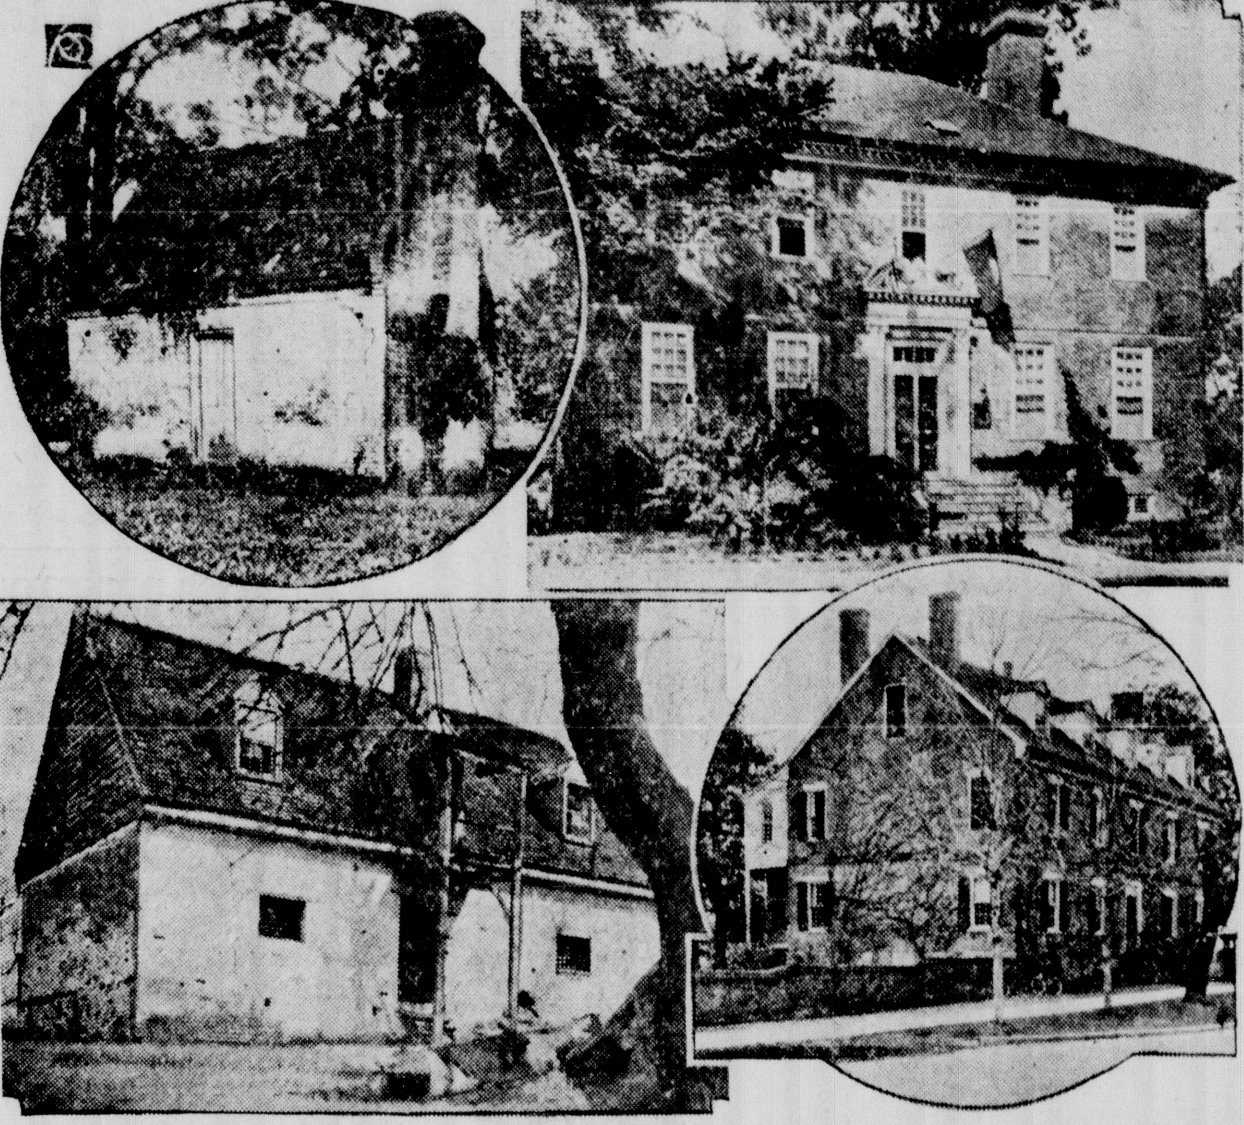

Another attempt at incendiarism was discovered here Saturday afternoon when the barn on the property of Robert Dyer, Walnut street, was found to be afire. Jacob Schell, at work at the Bristol Flower Growers, saw the smoke and extinguished the blaze without calling the firemen. There was a large space in the bottom of the barn which was burnt. It appeared to have been set afire from the outside.

Reconstruct Historic Virginia Town

Williamsburg, Virginia, village of ghosts and grandfather clocks and gardens, of Randolphs and Nelsons, Jeffersons and Washingtons, is to be reconstructed by the Rockefeller millions as a permanent American shrine. All modern houses within its corporate limits are to be razed and their places taken by structures smacking of the colonial era. Above at left is Martha Washington's kitchen, all that now remains of the home of Washington's wife; upper right, the George Wythe house (restored), which Washington used as his headquarters while pushing his campaign against Cornwallis in Yorktown; bottom left, the ancient jail which has been in continuous use for 250 years, and, right, the Vest home, headquarters of General McClellan during the war between the states.

THOUSANDS VISIT AT WILKES-BARRE FETE

Come from All Sections of the Wyoming Valley For Celebration

INDIAN TRIBES THERE

Thousands of persons from various sections of the Wyoming Valley were at Wilkes-Barre today for the presentation of the pageant of the Battle of Wyoming in connection with the celebration commemorating the 150th anniversary of the historic fight between settlers and Indians.

Two tribes of Indians, the Miami and Senecas, have sent representatives to take part in the celebration. The Miami came from an Indiana reservation while the Senecas came from their reservation in western New York State.

Heading the Miami tribe is Chief James Clarence Godfrey, a great-grandson of Frances Slocum who was stolen from her home by Indians and later married a chief of the Miami tribe. She was finally located in Indiana but despite the entreaties of relatives she refused to return to her home here.

Chief Godfrey will participate in the pageant depicting the abduction of the little girl, Claire Bennett, 11, a direct descendant of Frances Slocum, will take the part of her ancestor when the abduction is reenacted.

Another feature of the pageant will be the reenactment of the scenes of the Wyoming massacre in which almost 100 white settlers lost their lives. A duplicate of the old fort has been built at Forty Fort, which was the headquarters of the settlers in this region.

On Independence Day a huge parade will be held with the two tribes of Indians, the 105th Field Artillery and thousands of persons participating. The feature of the parade will be the historical depiction of the growth and development of Wyoming Valley from its earliest days to the present time, by means of floats and thousands of marchers.

Many high government and state officials are expected to attend the celebration which will close the night of July 4. Among those who are expected to arrive here are United States Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, Bingham, of Connecticut, Wagner, of New York; Auditor General Edward Martin, and several Congressmen, including John J. Casey, of the local district.

Miss Alice Kraft, of Bristol, is directing the pageant.

GEORGE SENSKE WEDS MISS DOROTHY M. JACOBS

Ceremony Takes Place in St. Thomas Aquinas Church, At Croydon

A RECEPTION IS HELD

CROYDON, July 2.—Miss Dorothy May Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jacobs, of Fourth and Delaware avenues, Croydon, was united in marriage on Saturday, at 4 o'clock, to Mr. George Senske, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Senske, of Philadelphia, the ceremony taking place in St. Thomas Aquinas Church.

The Rev. Father Thomas J. Nolan, rector of the church, officiated, the pretty ceremony being attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride was attended by Miss Helen Secoda, of Edgington, as bridesmaid, while Joseph Erdenske, of Philadelphia, acted as best man.

The former Miss Jacobs was most attractive in a gown of white satin, her lace veil being trimmed with orange blossoms and forget-me-nots. Her footgear was likewise of white, and she carried a bouquet of white bridal roses.

Miss Secoda was attired in a dress of pink georgette crepe, with hat to match. Her slippers and stockings were of silver color. Miss Secoda's arm bouquet was fashioned of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception took place at the residence of the bride's parents, about 200 guests attending. Mr. and Mrs. Senske left by automobile for Wildwood, N. J., where they will spend several days.

Both the bride and groom are well known in this section, and each have a host of friends in Philadelphia, where they have been employed. The gifts presented to them are numerous and beautiful.

The happy couple will reside in Croydon for a short time, until their home in Philadelphia, which is now in the course of erection, is completed. Mrs. Senske is a member of the auxiliary of the Croydon Fire Company, and of Court Croydon, Order of the Golden Sceptre.

UPPER DELAWARE RIVER IS SLOWLY RECEDING

Stream Reaches Seven Feet Above Normal—Causes Some Property Damage

BOAT TRAFFIC HALTED

Flood waters of the Delaware River were slowly receding early this morning after the stream had risen about seven feet above normal and had caused some damage in the Trenton section. Several wharves and floats were swept away from their moorings in the vicinity of Washington Crossing and Lambertville, and some boats anchored near Lalor street, Trenton, were carried down the stream to Morris Island.

The water rose within two feet of the Trenton Municipal Wharf and interfered with passenger boat service between there and Philadelphia. The service was cancelled on Saturday night and yesterday, but may be resumed today. The raging waters made it impossible to run the passenger boats and they were kept at anchor.

The freshet was due to the heavy rains in upper Pennsylvania. The Lehigh River overflowed its banks and caused the Delaware to rise rapidly. In some places the water is running over the banks of Sanhican Creek into the river.

During the afternoon many pieces of heavy timber floated down the river and it is believed they were parts of buildings washed away.

2 MORRISVILLE MEN LOGGED IN JAIL ON CRIMINAL CHARGE

Sheffield, Vittum Committed To Bucks County Jail Without Bail

ASSAULTED LITTLE GIRL

Attack Alleged to Have Taken Place in Sheffield Home

MORRISVILLE, July 2.—Accused of criminally assaulting an 11-year-old child, two Morrisville men were committed without bail to the Bucks County Jail at Doylestown Saturday night. They are Hugh Sheffield, 35 years old, of 328 Clymer avenue, and Stuart Vittum, 26 years old, who lives next door at 330 Clymer avenue, Morrisville.

Dr. William H. Kunsman, justice of the peace, first examined the girl and then committed the accused men. They had been arrested by Chief of Police Albert Cooper who arrived, it is said, just as Vittum was preparing to escape. Both men deny any knowledge of the crime with which they are charged.

The offense occurred, it is alleged, in the Sheffield house during the absence of his wife. The assaulted child had been minding the Sheffield's baby, it is said, while Vittum, who is single, was also present.

The mother of the 11-year-old girl came to the house and inquired for her daughter, but Vittum replied that he had not seen her. However, a short time later she ran crying from the house to her mother. The latter immediately communicated with Chief Cooper, who nabbed the two men before they were able to leave the house.

During the summer months the school is being held once each month instead of weekly as during the winter months.

All members are asked to be on hand tonight.

Wife Drops Dead Few Hours After Husband Leaves on Trip

Assunta Maltese, 54, wife of Pietro Maltese, 329 Lincoln avenue, dropped dead at her home here on Saturday morning while attending to her household duties.

The husband left his home early in the morning for Brooklyn and when he reached his destination there he found a message telling him to return at once as his wife had dropped dead of heart disease after he had left.

Mr. Maltese was heart-broken. The news of his wife's death was very sudden as she appeared to be in the best of health when he kissed her good-bye before leaving for Brooklyn.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at nine o'clock with high mass in St. Ann's church at 10 o'clock and burial in St. Mark's cemetery.

—Miss Mary Dugan, of 711 Pine street, has returned to her home from a fortnight's visit to her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jenkins, of Plains, Pa.

Lindy's Double

When young William Heskett landed in a plane in Kansas City and peered out of the cockpit, a shout went up from the crowd on the field that Colonel Lindbergh had arrived. LEGION JUBILEE CONTINUES TONIGHT AND TUESDAY

Affair to Be Given Two More Nights at Pond Street and Highway

INVITE THE PUBLIC

With pleasure did old and young alike hear the news over the week-end that the American Legion jubilee, scheduled for but three nights, is to be continued this evening and tomorrow evening.

The festivities, although attracting a goodly crowd on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of last week, were somewhat dampened by the rain and threatening weather of a miscellaneous nature.

But when Jupiter Pluvius did refrain from outpouring his sweet showers, adults and tots had a general good time. The colored lights and the flags used for lighting and decoration purposes, gave to the plot of ground at Pond and Market streets, a gala appearance.

Minute after minute passed by as Johnny and Billy gazed upon the war relics, oftentimes one piece suggesting some war instrument used by one of the tot's grandfathers in the Civil War, whereupon a lengthy description of "it" would be given. Their hands just "itched" to touch the helmets, the grenades and the pistols, and the youngsters kept an ever watchful eye open for an opportunity to lovingly handle the pieces.

Down the "Streets of Bazard" went Mother, Father and the children, each being attracted by something different, here or yon. They went with jingling purses, and left with overflowing arms. Some carried floor-lamps, parasol fashion, while occasionally the crash of a kitchen utensil would be heard as the hands were too heavily laden.

Many little daughters of local parents were not satisfied until they had added to their little fund a sufficient amount to buy one of the nice toy dogs. The animals, two feet long, acted as ballast all the way home.

Although some may have gone to the fete hungry, it is safe to say they were not in that condition when they left, for the vendors of hot "dogs," ice cream, soft drinks and candy, had little left to sell when the affair ended each night.

Robert Downing's able corps of assistants, kept busy for several hours Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and were well pleased with the response from the townfolk. This is the second fete of this nature which the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, has sponsored, and all of the members are hoping to go "over the top."

Adequate parking space has been provided on streets nearby the scene of the jubilee, and the men again wish to express their request that those attending refrain from parking upon the plot used for the affair.

2 ARE HURT WHEN CAR HITS TRUCK DURING RAIN STORM

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson Suffer Injuries in Crash On Highway, Here

BABY IS NOT INJURED

William I. Murphy's Car Is Considerably Damaged In Early Morning Collision

During the height of the storm last night a touring car crashed into the rear of a truck at Penn street and Highway, here, two persons being injured.

The truck belonged to the New York and Philadelphia Service. It was driven by Charles Ulmer, 2633 Waterloo street, Philadelphia, and carried a load of heavy lumber. The pieces of timber extended considerably beyond the rear of the truck. On the end of the timbers a green lantern and a white rag were displayed.

During the height of the storm the rain blinded motorists and it is presumed that the driver of the touring car, George Wilson, 245 Grove street, Morrisville, was blinded. In the car with Mr. Wilson was his wife and baby. The touring car crashed into the rear of the truck and was considerably damaged. It was towed to Manera's garage.

Mr. Wilson suffered a deep laceration of the head, and a possible fracture of the arm. Mrs. Wilson has a contused wound on the forehead, and possible fracture of an arm. Mr. Wilson remained at the Harriman Hospital over-night. Today, Mrs. Wilson will return and both will have X-rays taken to learn the full extent of the injuries.

The baby escaped unhurt.

Yesterday morning, at about 12.15, a sedan driven by William I. Murphy, 316 Jefferson avenue, and a coupe driven by Michael Pagliaro, 3323 Lambert street, Trenton, N. J., crashed at the intersection of Cleveland street and the Highway. The Murphy car was considerably damaged, but Mr. Murphy was not injured. Pagliaro was cut on the head. The car Pagliaro was operating belonged to Joseph Calabrese, 323 Lambert street, Trenton.

At about 10.30 Saturday evening, the sedan of Dominick Rago, Inlet street, struck the machine of James Connor, parked in front of 562 Bath street. The Connor car was struck from the rear and the rear tire was cut.

MONDAY, JULY 2, 1928

THE NEW CHAIRMAN

Selection of a new chairman of the Republican national committee by Herbert Hoover and ratification of his choice by the executive committee was in keeping with a long-standing tradition.

Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, was one of the first and most persistent advocates of Mr. Hoover's candidacy. Born in Pennsylvania, the new chairman's home is in Colorado and in his cabinet position he has been constantly in touch with men interested in the land problems of the West. Before his appointment to the post of secretary of the interior he was postmaster general, and an able one.

Franklin W. Fort, of New Jersey, the new secretary of the committee, is also one of the original Hoover men, and Joseph R. Nutt, a Cleveland banker, the new treasurer, preferred Hoover to Senator Willis in the primary campaign in Ohio.

Selection of these three places the campaign in competent hands and Mr. Hoover, than whom there is no better judge of character and capacity, indicates by his choice that these men have his fullest confidence in both respects.

Mr. Hoover himself, however, will probably be influential in the management of his own campaign. His genius for organization and administration will be at the disposal of the men who will be charged with the details.

THE ALL-REVEALING AD

A century from now a file of the advertising pages of the newspaper and magazine of today would provide a complete history of the customs and characteristics of the period. These advertisements record what the people are wearing, the problems of the day, current thought and the traits of the generation.

Pick up any issue of the family newspaper and there in word and picture is the story of the day. Preserve that issue and posterity a century from now can tell what the men and women of this generation wore, what their mode of transportation was, how they were amused and entertained. The advertisements have made the past an open book.

Picture a man in the year 2028 chancing upon a file of this newspaper for the year 1928. Turning to the advertising pages he would see arrayed before his eyes the styles in wearing apparel for men, women and children of one hundred years ago. He would see the types of automobiles in use and from the number of automobile advertisements he would deduce that the automobile was in great favor and universal use. By the same reasoning he would learn that the radio was in great demand, even exceeding in popularity the phonograph and player piano.

Training in the art of sleuthing would not be necessary for this reader of the advertisements of the past to inform himself, from the cancer-cure ads, that cancer was a menace to the generation and, from other ads, that obesity and exceeding thinness concerned the public as greatly as the malignant cancer.

The advertisements are also a record of economic conditions, revealing market prices and estimating the supply and demand.

For the discerning contemporary reader the newspaper advertisements afford more interesting and valuable information than he can preserve for posterity.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

Hundreds of persons, according to a half century old publication of "The Intelligencer" bearing date of Wednesday, June 19, 1878, attended the dedication exercises of the new Reformed church at Chalfont. Four services were held, at which time Rev. Henderickson, Bristol; Rev. Shelp, Doylestown, and Rev. Shelly, of the Reformed Mennonites, spoke. Rev. Dr. Bomberger, president of Ursinus College, had been expected to deliver an address, but he was unable to attend. The offerings during the services amounted to over $200.

A petition containing the names of a majority of the voters of the borough of Hulmeville was presented to Borough Council, asking for the repeal of an ordinance regarding the muzzling of dogs which had been passed at a previous meeting. After some consideration Council decided to repeal the ordinance.

Some relics were found on the banks of the Delaware river, above Taylorsville, on the farm of Thomas B. Lowmes. These relics were believed to have been associated with the war period of the Delaware and the braves of Playwick. The relics consisted of Indian arrow heads, and a part of a skull thick enough to resist hard knocks. They had been uncovered by the gradual wearing away of the bank of the river.

In a copy of the same publication dated May 18, 1878, the following items appeared:

Charles S. Bailey, assessor of the borough of Bristol, reported the number of taxables enrolled by him to be 1408, an increase of 204 over the previous year. The value of property taxable for county purposes was $932,840, an increase of $57,140 over the previous year. The property holders numbered 608 and other taxables 900. The borough contained 39 taxable watches and 11 taxable carriages. There were 69 non-resident property holders, who paid taxes on real estate assessed at $73,350.

Residents along the Delaware river were beginning to believe that body of water was becoming a salmon stream, when it was learned that another fish of this variety was caught at Penn's Manor. This fish weighed seventeen pounds.

In the Newtown Enterprise of June 3, 1893, the following appeared:

The fourteen members of the Newtown Cornet Band furnished the music for the Memorial Day ceremonies in Newtown. Attired in new uniforms they led the march to the cemetery. Thirty-five members of Thomas H. Wynkoop Post, G. A. R. were in line under charge of the commander Capt. Thomas P. Chambers. Charles Naylor Company F. K. M. C. was in line, led by George Ettinger, then Washington Camp, P. O. S. of A., led by Capt. John D. Bennett. The services were held over the grave of Edward Reeder. A local choir under the leadership of Harry A. Smith, with Robert Kenderdine as cornetist sang appropriate hymns and Rev. Edward Ritchie delivered the address of the day.

ITEMS OF INTEREST AS CLIPPED FROM NEWSPAPER FILES

George Randall, a well-known farmer of Bristol township, was taken suddenly ill while harrowing his corn field and died of heart trouble before he could reach his house.

A reception was given by the groom's parents, to Horace G. Mitchell and his bride, at their home in Langhorne.

David J. Matlack, of Langhorne Manor, was on a business trip to England.

On Saturday evening a number of teachers and others connected with the Junior League of the Methodist Church went to Willow Grove in automobiles, where they enjoyed a picnic. Those enjoying the trip were: Misses Marie Hanson, Adeline E. Reetz, Elizabeth Foster, Helen Elger, Margaret Perry, Mildred Prickett, Grace H. Hlick and Myrtle Egly.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Charles, of Washington, D. C., arrived here on Sunday to visit the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Myers, of Main street. Mrs. Charles will remain for a several days' visit.

Miss Margaret Smith will entertain her tenderly, certain now of his ground.

Suddenly Rose broke loose from his clasp, gasping, "Heavens Chuck, the coffee!" She rushed over to the burner, snatching the towel on her way, and reached for the pot that was already boiling over and bubbling on the plate. "Let's forget the lava, honey," Chuck reached over and took her hand from the cup, facing her about. "I gotta leave you pretty soon. I gotta business date or two." Rose frowned, not at all understanding what was going on in Chuck's mind. In fact she was a little hurt that he paid such small attention to all her ministrations and yet, at the same time, her heart jumped with joy, for she believed that it was because Chuck thought more of her than he did of the coffee that he wanted her to forget it. And so she allowed him to draw her closely to him.

Chuck's smile was a happy one, for he was confident now that Rose was his for the asking. He sat down on the bed, pulling the girl beside him and put his arms about her. He drew her face up to his and kissed her again and again. For a moment Rose returned his kisses, it was so thrilling to sit there in the arms of the man she loved and who, she believed, loved her.

But as his breath flamed hot on her neck, and his kisses grew more passionate, Rose turned suddenly and looked into his eyes. She drew back, startled, as she suddenly realized that what she saw there was not the love she had believed, but a calculating coldness that frightened her. She tried to pull away, but Chuck's arms only closed about her in a tighter grasp. Frantically she pushed with futile hands at his face, trying to tear his lips away from hers. Chuck stared at her at last in bewilderment.

"What's the matter, kid? Don't you love me," he questioned, frowning.

But Rose had jumped to her feet and was standing, leaning against the wash stand, her eyes bright with tears. She shook her head, gazing with hurt looks at the man before her. Her slight body trembled, her breath came quick and short. No one had ever kissed her the way Chuck had, and she could not yet realize what he had meant. But she only knew from that look she had seen on his face that there was something strange about the entire situation.

"Aw, jeez, Babe, I didn't mean nothing wrong. I'm sorry. Come on, kiss me and tell me you'll forgive me." For the moment Chuck's face was soft and tender as he looked at the slender, golden haired figure before him. He decided to try new tactics. Maybe she needed a little coaxing—maybe he had been a little hasty. And so he rose and put his arms about her and kissed her very gently.

"You're a sweet kid, honest," Chuck brushed back the curly hair that fell in a mass of ripples all about the slender, oval face. But that appealing look was too appealing and Chuck's lips were once more covering her eyes, her cheeks, her mouth.

"Chuck, please, you mustn't! You mustn't!" Rose tried to pull herself away. "Oh, please, Chuck!"

But the time was growing short and Chuck knew that it was almost the hour for his rendezvous and he had no intention of walking off and leaving this girl after he had spent so many, many evenings just being nice to her and playing up for this one moment. And so he drew more surely towards the bed, his arms clasped about her like bands of iron.

"No! No! No!" Rose shrieked. Her tiny fists beat a futile trade on his chest, struggling impotently against a fate that seemed almost marked out for her. Blindly she battled, and as she sobbed she remembered the words of Mamie uttered earlier in the evening.

She had been a fool to trust herself alone with this man. All the past warnings of the girls around the Cafe flashed through her mind. She must do something, and yet she could not free herself. Desperate, she flung out her arms behind her. Her hands caught on the edge of the washstand, balancing her for a moment. Suddenly her fingers struck against an old clock. With all the frenzy born of desperation, she snatched at it, raised it high in the air, and with all her strength brought it down on the head of this person who was slowly overpowering her.

Suddenly the body of the man crashed to the floor, crumpling up, writhing before her. Rose stood as still as though she had been suddenly turned to stone. She stared down at the figure, scarcely realizing what she had done. She saw a faint trickle of blood oozing across Chuck's forehead. The sight made her slightly sick, and she wavered for a moment, unsteady. The weight in her hand caused her to look and then she knew that she herself had caused the blood, for there was the clock, a little smear of red across its face.

New Riding Hero Dazzles Turfmen

When Jockey George Schreiner, 17, booted home four winners in the course of one short afternoon, he became sensationally famous overnight. A year ago he sought—and obtained—a job from Maxey Hirsch, noted trainer, and shortly thereafter he became a consistent winner in a field of riders much more experienced than himself. At left, Schreiner on the scales; above, the young rider winning by himself; at right, as he appears in street clothes, and, below, the hands responsible for many of his close victories.

Torrential Downpour Causes Confusion in Freak Storm

A freak storm, which apparently spent its full force on Bristol Borough and Edgely, caused much confusion to motorists and pedestrians last evening at about nine o'clock.

The torrential downpour of rain was accompanied by extremely high winds, and those upon the streets of the town were quickly driven to shelter.

Many motorists, fearful of what consequences might be, made for the nearest garages, until the height of the storm was past.

—Miss Betty Gaffney, of Corson street, was hostess on Friday evening at a class reunion at her home of the class of 1923 of St. Mark's High School. Dancing, addresses and refreshments were enjoyed. The class consists of the Misses Gaffney, Alice Gallagher, Alice McHugh, Agnes Weiss, Grace Blanche, Anita Lynn, Mae Slater, Mary McFadden, Laura Pope, Helen Mahan, Joseph Ennis, William Slater and John McGee.

RIVERSIDE THEATRE

Clara Bow, the "It" girl, in "Red Hair" will be the entertainment given patrons of the Riverside Theatre when the Paramount star's latest comedy comes to Bristol tonight and also Tuesday evening.

The flaming haired flapper of the screen is shown as a beautiful manicurist who causes complications, when she carries on three flirtations simultaneously. Clever situations are presented by Elinor Glyn in her story and those situations were just what Miss Bow was waiting for.

The production of "Red Hair" was made by virtually the same Paramount unit that turned out "It." The story is by Elinor Glyn, Clara Bow is the star and the direction was by Clarence Badger, who directed "It." In the supporting cast are William Austin and Jacquelin Gadson, both of whom are remembered for their performances in the first production. In addition, Lane Chandler, leading man, Lawrence Grant and Claude King support the star.

GRAND THEATRE

Dolores Del Rio, the Charmaine of "What Price Glory," who was known for her dancing ability before she made her screen debut, appears in an attractive dance sequence in the Fox Films version of "No Other Woman." Lou Tellegen's gripping drama of fashionable continental life, due for the Grand Theatre screen tonight for a two days' run. Her dancing partner is Ben Bard, former star of the vaudeville and musical comedy stages, also well known for his terpsichorean talents.

They dance the Argentine tango to the music of picturesque Basque musicians in an alluring ballroom at of the most exotic and fascinating scenes of its kind ever brought to the screen. It is also one of the vital climaxes of the drama of primitive passions revealed in "No Other Woman." The dancing, it is declared, is well worth viewing in itself, executed as it is with fine technique and surpassing grace.

Practically all of the scenes are laid in Biarritz, the smart seaside resort on the border line between France and Spain.

Peirce & Williams' Office Is Broken Into Again

Forcibly entered for the sixth time the office of Peirce & Williams, Dorrance and Canal streets, was broken into over the week-end. Entrance was gained through a rear window which was forced open. A rain coat was taken from a closet and hung over the glass in the door so that the presence of the intruders would not be detected from the outside.

A thorough search was made of the office by the intruders, but nothing of value had been left in the office. Quantities of burnt matches littered the floor and papers were scattered about. The safe door was open. The safe is never locked and nothing of value is left in it.

A HOME OF ENGLISH COTTAGE TYPE — Complete with Garage and Maid's Room

(By R. C. Hunter & Bro., Architects, New York)

To combine the charm of the old English Cottage with a thoroughly modern and practical American plan is the problem of many homebuilders.

In the old Cottages the plan layouts are worthless for modern use while many of the modern exteriors are devoid entirely of the charm of the old cottage, so it is a matter of compromise between plan layout and exterior charm and to get a thoroughly pleasing result taxes the ability of the designer.

The house herewith illustrated combines the practical and the artistic to an unusual degree. The exterior is pleasing yet the plan has not been sacrificed, in fact it would be difficult to produce a more practical or economical layout irrespective of exterior.

A generous attic is provided in which another roof can be finished off if desired.

A cellar extends under the main body of the house.

This house should have a lot with a frontage of seventy-five feet to avoid cramping.

Cost about $11,000.

Complete working plans and specifications of this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House HA-161-R.

Kept Baby a Secret

"All my life I've lived like a goldfish in a glass bowl," said Mae Murray, picture star and the wife of Prince David M'Dvni, when questioned about the birth of a baby a year ago. Her husband told reporters that news of the baby was withheld for fear it might affect Miss Murray's career in the films.

CLARA BOW

"The Girl With It"

—IN—

'RED HAIR'

Boy! Does she step? And how? Just a sweet little manicurist who likes pretty things—the girl who has "it" and a red hair personality leading a host of admirers around by their coat tails, and they like it! Speed?—The throttle's wide open! You just can't miss this one! Elinor Glyn says that people with red hair are dynamic paradoxes. Well, it takes the IT girl, Clara Bow, to prove that true, and you'll believe it after you have seen her.
